

The camp Good News this year was different in many ways from the ones during previous summers. This time the kids were quickly divided into cabins and groups. It was such a joy for me to see the kids coming all smiling from the activities like: craft, praise and worship, origami and floristic. The girls in my group were so joyfully singing the songs with George and even singing it all together in the cabin before going to bed.

What surprised me the most where the five older boys that stayed in the cabins by themselves, we all thought they will be the trouble makers and won't behave properly, only to be surprised by the change in them as they set a model behavior for the rest of the children. They always helped the leaders with the younger boys.

The girls in my group evening we had the were a great idea and is important for the gifts God granted them appreciative of their differ from their own, unique. The children receive gifts and small question was: Is this They were just not gives them something gift not asking anything in return. I think it is an important lesson that the children enjoy receiving gifts and feel the joy that comes with it and this way they learn that giving brings joy.

really enjoyed the talent show. The skits were well presented. It children to know the with and be friends' talents that as God created us were all surprised to presents the first for me? Can I keep it? used to someone that and allows enjoying the
