

I really enjoyed being at Camp Good News 2006. I have learned many things as being a leader of a small group and it was very interesting for me to work with the kids. I was very much impressed by that evening when the children were quietly coming to the cross with their sins and after asking for forgiveness throwing their posted notes with written sins on it into the fire, to disappear from their lives and be forgotten forever.

Sometimes the children won't listen or be quiet for activities, with patience I was trying to capture their attention so that the activity could go on.

It was a blessing seeing God working at the hearts of the children after they watched the Jesus movie; it was amazing to see how that night 101 children opened their hearts to Jesus.

The last day of camp the children expressed their impressions about the camp saying that they would like to come back to this camp next summer.

This week of camp was an interesting and new experience for me. I am glad God used me to do his work and allowed me the privilege to see His power of changing the lives of the children, their attitude and behavior; seeing an amazing change in the children by the end of the week.
