

This Camp Good News was more special to me than the ones from previous summer. The children very much enjoyed the games, praise and worship, arts and crafts – they enjoyed discovering their talent of making something beautiful with they own hands.

It was such a joy to see the change in the girls, saying that this is the best camp they have been to even better than the ones that have disco.

I personally enjoyed George's sermons, praise and worship and the time we had as a team sharing testimonies. During the first days of camp I noticed that these kids needed more attention and time to be spent with them. Every evening my girls would wait up for me until I was back from the team's meeting, so I could tell them another Bible story before they went to sleep. One important lesson that my girls learned was to love one another.

It was amazing to see the change in them as they tried to help each other during the day, wait for each other, talk nicely, show kindness and not be competitive and mean to with each other. I hope to be a part of Camp Good News next year again.
